For the past five years I have been a blessed person, with family and faith and so many other things life has brought.

But I've also had the opportunity over that period to get to know so many wonderful people who have participated in our golf tournament that benefits the Justice Coalition.

This year, however, the tournament holds special meaning in light of the tragic events that have occurred in our country since last we met. What we've all been through reminds us how fortunate we are. It also reminds us of how much we need each other.

How fitting then is the Justice Coalition's mantra — Together we can, together we will. Together we will continue to assist victims of violent crime and fight crime at the same time.

Your generosity over the years in taking part in this tournament is one of the reasons it's working- that and the work of the Justice Coalition.

So I come to you again, asking you to take part in our very meaningful day of golf and fun. I know more than ever how much I need others. I know this terrific cause needs you.
