

Ask The Mayor

Mayor John Delaney

What is the number one change you would like to see implemented that would dramatically affect the crime rate in Jacksonville?

"It really lies in what I call the Three P's: police, prison and prevention. It is never just one of these three that can make the total difference. All three are critical to the formula for reducing crime. If you only have police and prison (punishment) without addressing prevention, then you don't really have a long-term effect. And, of course, this applies to any one or two of the elements standing on their own.

It will be a combination of implementing all of these elements that, I believe, will make the real difference."
