On the Lighter Side

After putting her grandchildren to bed, a grandmother changed into old slacks and a droopy blouse and proceeded to wash her hair. As she heard the children getting more and more rambunctious, her patience grew thin.

At last she threw a towel around her head and stormed into their room, putting them back to bed with stern warnings. As she left the room, she heard the three-year-old say with a trembling voice, "Who was THAT?"

pull vehicles over or investigate crimes, but they can write tickets, be crossing guards and help relieve regular officers of paperwork, freeing them for other police activities. They will be highly visible in their bright yellow shirts.

Also in January, JSO obtained a 54,000 lb., 38-foot-long Mobile Command Center Vehicle, custom designed and outfitted with state-of-the-art electronics and technology. This mobile "police station" can be deployed to large special events or crime scenes that require extensive on-site work by multiple law enforcement agencies.

Used in larger metropolitan areas, MCCs afford first responders – police, fire, rescue, HAZMAT, SWAT – an opportunity to set up a unified command, with multiple agencies collecting intelligence at the scene, making decisions cooperatively and quickly. It is a valuable tool in today's Homeland Security efforts.

available. It helps to see there are others who are experiencing the same kinds of emotions. It also helps to have a safe place to talk about your loved one and to have support as you feel the pain and loss.

There is no easy way to get rid of the pain of losing someone. If it were easy or quick to grieve, it would say something about the depth of the relationship. When you invest in another person's life, you are automatically invested in experiencing his or her death.
