Driving to the site of this year's SHOOT FOR JUSTICE, we were charmed by the grazing longhorn cattle, baby calves and goats, horses and even an occasional llama. Although it was early, the temperature was steadily rising, and it would be a scorching hot day at the beautiful wooded area owned by W W Sporting Clays of Bryceville. But that didn't deter participants in the 2nd Annual SHOOT FOR JUSTICE.

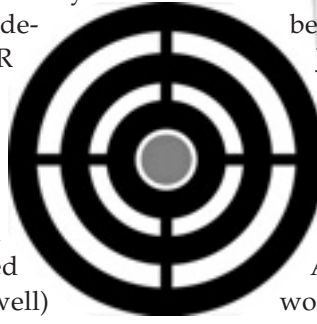

When the fourteen teams of four arrived, they received a bag containing a JC camouflage cap, a plush towel to hang from their belts (very handy on a hot day), ear plugs, an FBI pamphlet and copy of the latest Victims' Advocate. They enjoyed coffee and doughnuts (courtesy of Robert Bracewell) and rode off with their shotguns in carts provided by D G Golf Carts to the skeet stations located strategically on the property. Justice Coalition volunteers stood behind each shooter to pull the clay disks when instructed.

At the end of fourteen rounds, Becky Hogan (owner of the Mayport Princess fishing boat) and her teams finished in first and second place; Bracewell's team rounded out the top three. Each winning player received a beautiful wooden plaque, intricately crafted especially for the occasion by Winning Concepts USA, Inc.

A delicious lunch of roasted half chickens, baked beans, cole slaw, bread and iced tea was provided by Jim Clemons and his Cross Creek Steakhouses on Lane Avenue and Lem Turner. Jim Krause, PA, ensured everyone stayed hydrated with water, Gatorade and other sodas, kept on ice in coolers brought by Gary Hopkins of American Electrical.

Following a spirited auction (facilitated by American Fundraising Auctions, Inc.) of many wonderful donated items, everyone departed, saying what a wonderful day it had been and looking forward to next year. Many thanks to all those who sponsored, donated, volunteered and worked so hard to make this event happen. All proceeds will enable the Justice Coalition to continue the work started 15 years ago by Ted Hires - advocating for innocent victims of violent crime.

WW Clays Manager Ken Branham gives rules for the Shoot.
