

...to Clarence W. Gooden, Executive Vice President and Chief Commercial Officer of CSX Corporation, for being named JSO's Citizen of the Year!

Recognized as a citizen who has given extraordinary service to the community, Gooden is the essence of a civic leader who has devoted his professional life to supporting the Jacksonville Sheriff's Office, specifically the Police Athletic League of Jacksonville and its mission of "filling playgrounds, not prisons."

Clarence W. Gooden

Mallison Park was no longer safe and enjoyable for the families of the Lackawanna area of West Jacksonville. Because of Gooden's fundraising efforts with two very successful CSX Charity Train Rides, the Mallison Park Community Center now houses another PAL after-school education program, a sport participant tutoring program, recreational activities, and will soon offer a wide range of sports for Jacksonville youth when the track opens this month. The center is also a safe place for residents in the community to use for neighborhood events.

Gooden played a pivotal role in promoting crime prevention and intervention programs for Mallison Park area residents. He is a testament to how one corporate leader delivered the promise to help residents take back their neighborhood and rid the area of criminal activity. Since our "Fresh Start in the Park" dedication ceremony in January 2005, violent crime has declined 35percent in the Mallison Park neighborhood - that's compared to the year before and includes a 1000-foot radius of the park.

Clarence Gooden, also recently recognized by the Florida Crime Prevention Association as their Community Leader of the Year for 2005, is an admirable leader known for his sterling character, illustrious achievements and a lifelong commitment to community stewardship. His dynamic hard work has contributed to building stronger, healthier communities and helping "at risk" youth become outstanding citizens.
